

Cookie Policy

If your site tracks personal information through the use of cookies or similar technologies, you must clearly inform your site visitors about this. Be transparent about which tracking tools (cookies, flash cookies, web beacons, etc.) your site uses, what personal information they collect, and why they are used.

It should be noted that third-party services provided through Lookus, such as Google Analytics or other applications, may have their own policies regarding the collection and storage of information when placing cookies or utilizing other tracking technologies through Lookus services. As these are external services, such applications are not included in Lookus's Privacy Policy.

The explanations and information provided here consist only of general descriptions, information, and examples. You should not interpret this article as legal advice or as a suggestion of what you should actually do. We recommend seeking legal consultancy services to obtain information and assistance when creating your privacy policy.